125 AT MEETING OF COUNTY FIRE ASSOCIATION

Local Chiefs Are Hosts to All County Units at Regular Session

With Washington township chiefs as hosts, the Alameda County Firemen's Association held one of the best meetings in its history at the El Lido cafe, Centerville, Tuesday night. Frank Madrugá, Centerville, president of the association, presided. There were 125 in attendance.

Among the guests of the evening were Sam Short, retired Oakland captain; Charles Smith, state fire marshal, of San Francisco, and several local men. Alleen G. Norris extended the welcome of the evening.

Following the main feature, a talk by Sidney Jones, of the state bureau of mines, on the proper use of smoke masks, Chief Roland Bendel, of Decoto, gave a resume of the serious Decoto fire, which occurred recently.

A report was heard on the proposed county ordinance to allow inspection of school buildings, and a committee of three: Frank Sandy and Chief Riggs, of Oakland, and Fred Rogers, Centerville chief, named to draw up the ordinance.

Musical entertainment was furnished by the Washingtonians, led by Lawrence Gonzales. The orchestra was secured through the effort of Joe Jason. Esther Jason is pianist for the group. The Alameda fire department band also played.

Nomination and election of officers will be held at the next meeting, Madrugá said.

Sam Kerns attended a dinner party at the Gamma Phi sorority house on the Stanford University campus Sunday evening.

DRUNKEN DRIVER CODDLED AT TRIAL FRIDAY; FELONY COUNT REDUCED BY MOTION

Prosecuting Attorney Soft Pedals Charge Against Intoxicated Marine

Sam Goldenberg, Moffett Field corporal, whose drunken driving was a direct cause of permanent disfiguring injuries to a San Jose woman, was petted out from under a felony charge here Friday on motion of Assistant District Attorney Stanley C. Smallwood.

Goldenberg, obviously drunk when arrested by Captain Louis Eike, of the Highway Patrol, according to the record, caused the crash on the Mission San Jose-Warm Springs road on October 19, when he lost control of his car and drove it head-on into that of R. M. Sheffler, of San Jose. Mrs. Sheffler, riding with her husband suffered severe cuts about the face. One of the gashes severed the tear duct, with permanent eye injury almost certain. Two boys, sons of Sheffler, were riding in the rumble seat. Neither were hurt. Corporal William Carrall, riding with the drunken marine, was injured.

The original charge, to which Goldenberg was to answer, was a felony, based on the fact that his intoxication was the direct cause of the accident. The assistant district attorney, apparently following the custom and practice of his superiors, moved that the charge be reduced to a reckless driving count, to which Goldenberg immediately pleaded guilty. Judge J. A. Silva fined him $100, which he paid.

As the data seems to indicate, the case was an open and shut one of criminal disregard for the safety of others, and although Goldenberg will no doubt be roughly handled by his military superiors in addition to the small

THIEVES STRIP WRECKED PLANE AT CENTERVILLE

Taking advantage of the unguarded premises while the family was attending the funeral of Harry Perry, plane crash victim, thieves entered the Perry ranch, near Centerville, and stripped the wreckage of Perry's plane of eight spark plugs, valued at $4.50 apiece, and the landing gear, including tires and wheels.

The wrecked monoplane, in which three met their death, had been hauled from the Silvers field to the Perry ranch by Hubert and Joseph Castro.

Mrs. R. B. Boyer and daughter, of Oakland, spent Monday night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Philip Moore.

CHURCHES TO HOLD JOINT ARMISTICE DAY SERVICES

Joint Armistice day services will be held at the Congregational church, Niles, Sunday evening, with the Rev. James M. McElhinny, of the Centerville Episcopal church to deliver the address of the day. The Rev. McElhinny has chosen "Peace" as his topic.

Congregations of the Niles Congregational church and the St. James Episcopal church will gather for the services, to hear their respective pastors—the Rev. W. Dexter Gordon and the Rev. Wm. J. Attwood, both of whom will speak.

JUNIORS LAUNCH DRIVE TO INCLUDE SUBWAY IN PROJECT

Urge Canyon Underpass Be Improved If New Road Put Through

Basing their plan of activity on encouragement given Sam Kerns and Joe Viveiros by Earl Lee Kelly, public works official, the Niles Junior Chamber of Commerce Monday started a drive to have the canyon subway, at the east end of town, included in the WPA road project here.

A committee, consisting of J. N. Viveiros, Norman Rose, Guido Tuana and Barney Briochi, was appointed by Kerns to take numerous photographs of the congested traffic at the point in question, including pictures of trucks wedged under the low railroad overpass. The pictures, along with a petition that the work be included, will be dispatched to Kelly at the earliest possible date.

Possibility of opening Eye street across to Vallejo street was also discussed, in the event the county

ALVARADO VOTERS WILL CONSIDER BOND ISSUE

Taxpayers in the Alvarado school district will go to the polls on November 18, to pass judgment on a proposed $25,000 bond issue, found necessary to defray costs of earthquake-proofing the grammar school building and for other repairs and improvements.

Recommended by state architects, the earthquake repairs have been the center of considerable discussion, both by the school trustees and the public at large. Mrs. Walter Robie, clerk of the board, called two public meetings recently to sound out sentiment of the taxpayers on the expenditure.

In the event that the bonds are not voted, board members will be clear of any blame should future quakes result in damage to the building.

Mrs. Josephine Brown, of Oakland, and Mrs. J. E. Townsend, of Campbell, attended the Country Club meeting Tuesday afternoon.

TOMATO HARVEST CUT SHORTER BY FROSTY WEATHER

Growers Make Haste To Salvage Marketable
Crop Monday

Blue tomato growers matched the blue skies and blue noses in this district early this week, when continued cold weather and heavy morning frosts wilted the vines and bit into the ruddy vegetables.

At least a week's harvest time was cut off, growers said, as they made hasty efforts Monday to gather the best of their remaining tomatoes before further icy mornings. The crop here and in Contra Costa county suffered considerable damage, with the result that canneries find it almost impossible this week to continue work.

Low temperatures, with icy winds, have driven residents of the district into winter clothing, as weather men gave no hope of a let-up early this week. Thermometers in this district registered 31 degrees Monday morning.

ROGERS' GROCERY AT MISSION SAN JOSE RANSACKED

Post Office Safe, In Same Building, Ignored By Burglars

Goods valued at approximately $110 were found missing Sunday morning by J. E. Rogers, Mission San Jose merchant, when he opened his establishment to distribute the Sunday mail. The Mission post office in the same building as Rogers' store was not entered by police said.

Forcing a back window the thieves ransacked the store taking their choice of watches, gloves, razor blades, pocket knives and cigarettes.

The robbery is the third suffered by Rogers in the past several years, one of the former thefts including the post office from which a quantity of stamps were taken.

Feeble Earthquake Stops Clocks Here Early Friday

Pendulum clocks throughout the township were stopped Monday morning, with their hands pointing to 6:45 o'clock, apparently by a feeble earthquake shock. As far as could be determined no one noticed what must have been an almost imperceptible tremor.

Seismographs at Santa Clara and the University of California registered the Huntington Beach tremor Monday at shortly after 7 a. m.

Miss Minton to Be Wed To Officer at Shanghai

According to a report from San Francisco Sunday, Miss Mary Minton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Minton, of San Francisco, sailed for Shanghai, China, early this week, where she will marry Lient. Phil McGeir who is on duty with the Asiatic fleet.

Miss Minton is a niece of the Misses Gallegos, of Mission San Jose.

Why do They Pamper these Drunken Drivers?

A young married woman will go down to her grave, never for one day being able to forget an automobile accident in which her face was disfigured. A man may receive bad scars and forget the matter in a few weeks or few months. A woman never forgets, nor is she ever completely reconciled to the marring of her beauty. Good-looks is everything to the feminine mind. Money, position—all material things—sink into nothingness compared to a good physical appearance.

A young married woman, we repeat—a resident of San Jose by the way—will never forget an automobile accident that occurred two weeks ago on the highway north of Warm Springs. A drunken driver—Corporal Sam Goldenberg, by name—probably has already forgotten the incident in which he was a damning participant. And why shouldn't he forget quickly. A hundred-dollar fine is hardly more annoying than the bite of a mosquito. True, the army officer may have to economize on liquor for a month or so, but then congenial friends are always inviting a "good fellow" up to the bar for a three-finger drag on hell-water.

Don't blame Judge Silva. Put the blame where it belongs—on the district attorney. The felony charge was reduced, upon the recommendation of Earl Warren's regime, from drunken driving to one of reckless driving. On such a charge the judge couldn't put the intoxicated motorist where he belonged—in jail for a year—nor could he revoke the corporal's driver's license.

Though the case against Goldenberg was 100 per cent legal proof, the district attorney had his deputy compromise the matter with the attorneys of the defendant, and let the drunken marine off with a slap on the wrist.

It is a lamentable fact, and a source of shame to sober, decent people, that there is no place in California where it is safer to drive a car while drunk than in Alameda county. Practically all the dirty curs who drive automobiles while under the influence of liquor, arrested by traffic officers, later go scott free or are assessed light fines.

The place for drunken drivers is in jail, with their licenses permanently revoked. It would be better for society in general if they were drawn and quartered on the spot of their infamous crimes.

The toll of dead—and a thousand times worse, the MAIMED—is shockingly mounting. It is time that prosecuting attorneys and courts were putting the fear of the law into the hearts of that contemptible type of criminal who fills up on rotten booze and then drives out on the highway to disfigure, cripple and murder decent, law-abiding people.

Every Cloud Has Its Silver Lining

The Alameda Times-Star is worrying about the damage being suffered by California through the activities of William Randolph Hearst. As everyone knows, the billionaire chain publisher is

SCOUT OFFICIALS DEFER DRIVE FOR TROOP FUNDS HERE

Originally scheduled for the two-week period between October 28 and November 11, the Boy Scout fund drive in Washington township has been deferred until after the first of the year, according to Allen G. Norris, district chairman.

Decision to postpone the campaign was reached at a recent meeting of local officials with Regional Director A. Carlson, who stated that he would send an experienced man to this district after January 1, to assist in the work. The drive was to have been handled this month by the respective scout committees where troops are operating.

In the meantime, scout officials here will make an effort to revive

Union Oil Takes Over Niles Service Station

The Union Oil Company, through Jack Greely, their representative in this district, has rented the J. T. Champion service station, at the intersection of First and G streets, Niles. The station will be maintained as a company unit, or sub-let at a later date.

Champion, who put up the station, handled Texaco products previously.

Mr. and Mrs. P. H. Moore entertained the Evening Card Club at dinner and bridge Friday evening.

Interest in scouting at Niles and Newark, where the troops have not met regularly for many weeks. Neither of the above troops were represented at the district rally, recently held at Centerville.

POSTS SPONSOR ARMISTICE DAY GRID CLASSIC

Washington and Amador Alumni Teams To Clash Monday

Venerable joints will be loosened, and aging ribs thumped Monday afternoon, when the annual grid classic, sponsored by the Pleasanton and Washington township posts of the American Legion, will take the sports' followers' eye at the Washington Union High school field. The participants will be the alumni teams of the Amador and Centerville high schools. This will be the second annual Armistice day contest, backed by the posts.

Football will not be alone in contributing to the color and spirit of the day, according to Manuel Swartz, local post commander, who has outlined additional activities. The day will begin with the advance of the colors, escorted by the firing squad of post 195. The squad drill will supplement the maneuvers of the bands, who will lend musical encouragement to the grid warriors. The Centerville concert band, of the Druid grove, will switch allegiance for the day, and be official musical support of the Amador players. The Washington Union High school band will participate.

CENTERVILLE FORD AGENCY IS BOUGHT BY SAN JOSE MAN

After operation for four months under the management of Furtado and Bettencourt, the Ford agency, at Centerville, has been purchased by J. D. Adams, of San Jose.

Adams, who is now getting acquainted with the staff and establishment, was formerly manager for R. M. Cuthbert, San Jose Ford dealer. He held that post twelve years.

The new owner states that the present staff will be retained, and that no material changes will be made in the building. Additional equipment will be installed to bring the standard of service even higher. Adams called particular attention to the laboratory tester, designed specifically for Ford cars.

Pleasant, efficient and genial, Adams has already been made a welcome member of the circle of businessmen.

Kimber Named Officer In Poultry Association

John B. Kimber, Niles poultryman, was named secretary-treasurer of the State Poultry Improvement Association, when that organization was formed at a recent Berkeley meeting. The group will carry on the national program and will act as an agency for developing better type of fowl.

Speeders Fork Out $184 Here In 8-Day Period

Days between October 25 and November 1 were sad ones for miscreant motorists arrested in this district, and profitable ones for the Niles justice court, judging from the $184 taken in fines by Judge J. A. Silva between those two dates.

The majority of the twenty-three cases involved simple speeding, miscalculated lights and illegal parking. There were two reckless driving fines of $25 each.

Arts and Crafts Guild to Meet Tuesday Night

The first November meeting of the Washington Township Arts and Crafts Guild will be held on Tuesday evening at the home of Mrs. Gladys Williamson. The program of the evening will be arranged by Mrs. Norman H. Parks.

HUSKERS POINT FOR PLEASANTON AND CHAMPIONSHIP

Defeated only once, and with a league record unblemished, the Washington high Huskers football team will go into their final season game tomorrow against Pleasanton. All pointers indicate a certain Centerville win and another league pennant.

Pleasanton's aggregation, far from weak, has come along briskly, and is pointing for the touted Huskers. Comparative strength of the eleven may be sensed from scores against Albany, rated as a powerful aggregation. Pleasanton tied them six-all, while Regli's charges smothered Albany last Friday, 31 to 0.

Taking to the air only twice in the contest, the Huskers rolled up a total of 288 yards to Albany's 65. First downs numbered Washington 14, Albany 3.

Coach Jess Regli prescribed only light practice for Monday and Tuesday, working the most part with the line. He gave the final scrimmage call yesterday, running the first and second strings through a tough session. The squad will member up today with light practice.

Followers of the team expect to see the same starting lineup tomorrow as for the Albany game, which was: Juarez and Silva, ends; Fields and Sinclair, tackles; Ceasari and Straub, guards; Rose and Mune, halfbacks; Medeiros, fullbacks, and Fisher, starter.

JELSIMINA BAPTISTA, FRED BETTENCOURT, MARRIED AT RENO

Keeping word of their plans from their closest friends, Miss Jelsmina Baptista and Fred Bettencourt, both of Centerville, were wed at Reno last Wednesday.

Mrs. Bettencourt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Manuel Baptista, of Mowrie road, is one of Centerville's popular young women. She attended the Centerville Grammar school and the Washington Union High school, as did Bettencourt. He is the son of Mrs. Marianna Bettencourt, of Mattos station, and is employed at the H. P. Garin plant here.

The young couple have taken up residence at Irvington.

I'M SOLD

It always works

Just do what hospitals do, and the doctors insist on. Use a liquid laxative, and you can bring yourself to clocklike regularity without strain or ill effect.

A liquid can always be taken in gradually reduced doses. Reduced dosage is the secret of any real relief from constipation.

Ask a doctor about this. Ask your druggist how very popular Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin has become. It gives the right kind of help, and right amount of help. Taking a little less each time, gives the bowels a chance to act of their own accord, until they are moving regularly and thoroughly without any help at all.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin contains senna and cascara—both natural laxatives that form no habit. The action is gentle, but sure. It will relieve any sluggishness or bilious condition due to constipation without upset.

ROBERT MACKENZIE WILL SPEAK TO KNIGHTS HERE

Important matters concerning the welfare of the Knights of Columbus organization will be discussed before the Centerville council next Thursday night by Special Agent Robert A. Mackenzie.

Grand Knight Thomas P. Maloney calls attention of members to the meeting, which will be held at the Parish hall, starting at 7:30 p. m.

Following Mackenzie's address, refreshments will be served by a committee composed of Manuel Lewis, George Coit and Jose Luiz.

GRAND TRUSTEE TO VISIT PARLOR ON NOVEMBER 19

Preparations are under way at Centerville for the official visit of Grand Trustee Adrian H. Hines, of the Native Sons of the Golden West. Hines will call on the Washington parlor on November 19. He will be accompanied by delegation of sons from various Oakland parlors, according to Allen G. Norris, president of the Centerville unit.

On December 5, Norris said, Washington parlor will celebrate its forty-fifth anniversary, at which time a class of candidates will be initiated into the organization. Members hope to have on hand for the occasion Grand President Harmon D. Skillin, of San Francisco, and a number of other grand officers. A banquet is planned to wind up the festivities.

Rural Chiefs May Have Sirens On Their Cars

Rural fire chiefs and their assistants may feel free to use red lights and sirens on their automobiles hereafter, following word from the motor vehicle department that the accessories are to be used only while the fireman is on actual fire duty.

The question arose several weeks ago, when Joseph Garcia, of the Decoto department, was stopped by police in Hayward, and ordered to remove his red spotlight. Garcia complained to Chief Roland Bendel, who, in turn, mentioned the matter to Frank Madrugra, president of the Alameda County Firemen's Association. Madrugra ordered Deputy State Fire Marshal Carl Geppert, secretary of the association to find facts on the matter.

So the firemen may have their official appointments, but only for emergency duty.

WILLIAM ESTUDILLO WINS BASS DERBY AT PITTSBURG

William Estudillo and M. A. Alameda are ten and five dollars richer, respectively, after taking first and second prizes for the largest fish caught in the Washington Township Striped Bass Club derby, held off Pittsburg, Sunday. Forty local fishermen attended.

Estudillo's striper flopped away with first honors, tipping the scale at ten and five-eighths pounds. Alameda's biggest, good enough to take second place, weighed six pounds. Several other prizes were awarded last night, when final results were checked by the derby committee.

Ray Peterson, of Niles, and Ken Ferry, who were tied for first place in the season competition, were shunted to second place by Estudillo's catch.

Committeemen who arranged for the first annual event were M. J. Bernardo, Joseph Lewis, Captain Theodore Oaks, Wilbur Bettencourt and Leonard Dondero. Claremond Secada, Pete Nunes and Robert Francis took an active part.

Junior Patrol Boys See Grid Game at Stanford

Members of the Centerville Grammar school junior traffic patrol journeyed to Palo Alto Saturday, and enjoyed the football game between Santa Clara and Stanford. Thomas P. Maloney, principal, accompanied the junior contingent. Boys who made the trip: Kazuei Tate, John Soito, Joseph Soito, Tom McWirthier, Richard Marriott, Keichi Isoda, George Ushijima, Harry Ushijima, Toshio Shiozaki, Noboru Hayashi, Takane Hayashi, George Inouye and Norishege Oku.

On Thursday, October 31, students at the Centerville Grammar school enjoyed a Halloween program staged by Miss Josephine Herbert's fifth graders. Class parties were held later in the day.

STUDENTS SEE FILM

Students of the Washington Union High school were shown a motion picture of the construction work on the Hetch Hetchy pipeline last week by A. B. Cheminent, San Francisco water department engineer. The program was arranged by Paul Daugherty, member of the high school faculty.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Alexander, of Redwood City, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. T. N. Alexander over the week-end.

Centerville Personal Items

Miss Edith Bergman entertained the Friendly Club members at bridge last Thursday.

The Asulikit Club met with Mrs. Hawley on Friday for luncheon and bridge. Mrs. Earle was winner of the first prize, Mrs. Alexander, second, and Mrs. John Lowman, consolation.

Members of the Centerville council, S. P. R. S. I. will enjoy their monthly card party at Parish hall this afternoon.

Mrs. Mary Bettencourt, Miss Emily Bettencourt, Mrs. M. Rodriguez and Mrs. Mary Calderia, all of Centerville, attended the funeral of Manuel Lewis at San Leandro Saturday.

Jack Brides returned to his home here Monday after undergoing an appendicitis operation at a San Jose hospital Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Furtado and family visited Oakland friends Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Manuel Goularte, formerly of Centerville, are now making their home at Palo Alto.

Mrs. Inez Perry is making her home in Centerville again, after residence in San Jose for a number of months.

ACCIDENTAL DEATH IS INQUEST VERDICT IN AIR TRAGEDY

"Death due to accident," was the verdict reached Monday at a corner's inquest, held at the office of Deputy Coroner F. F. Botelho, in the death of Harry Perry, William Rose and Joseph Bernard, killed when Perry's plane crashed in Stiver's field on October 27.

Perry and Bernardo suffered basal skull fractures, while Rose's death was due to a crushed chest.

Witnesses at the inquest were George Silva, who had flown with Perry earlier in the day, and Mark Stivers, owner of the property on which the tragic accident occurred. It was estimated that the ship was at an altitude of about 200 feet, in a vertical bank, when the dive started. Witnesses were of the opinion that one of the passengers accidentally stepped on the dual rudder bar, throwing the plane out of control.

Constable Tom Silva, who questioned spectators at the scene of the accident, was at the inquest.

President Sam Kerns announced that a committee of Niles men is to be appointed soon, to select a young man in Niles "or receipt of the United States Junior Chamber of Commerce distinguished service award, given in each junior chamber town to the one who performs the most outstanding civic service. The recipient does not have to be a member of the Junior Chamber of Commerce, Kerns pointed out.

Following the reading of a letter from William H. Ford, in which he accepted an invitation to address the junior group, it was voted that he be asked to speak at the first public meeting of the chamber, to be held in January, in conjunction with the annual installation of officers.

Committee reports were heard from Fred Barton, on the forthcoming turkey whist party, and Will Cavanaugh, on the finances of the chamber.

Speaker of the evening was E. Dixon Bristow, Niles Grammar school principal, who pointed out the merits of the junior group as an interest point for young men in the town. He told of the American Legion post Armistice day celebration and football game, to be held Monday at Centerville.

Eugene Johnson, new member, was introduced, and Dan Marble, visitor, was asked to say a few words.

KELLY AGREES TO NEED FOR NEW UNDERPASS

Sam Kerns, president of the Niles Junior Chamber of Commerce, and J. N. Viveiros, director, made a special trip to Sacramento last Wednesday to interview Earl Lee Kelly, public works administrator, on the proposed highway realignment at Niles.

Although Kelly stated that the project has been cleared through his department, among thirty-eight projects, a possible opportunity for deferring it may be made by protest to the WPA officials, through whom the funds are distributed. The Junior Chamber of Commerce discussed the matter fully Monday night.

Kerns stated that Kelly seemed amenable to a suggestion that the present underpass at the cannery be included in the project, if it is brought to construction. The underpass would be widened so that traffic could enter in a wide turn with clear visibility. Need for such an improvement was obvious, Kelly agreed, in order that the flow of traffic into First street would not be impaired.

When questioned as to the status of the present route in the event the new road is laid, Kelly said it would revert to the county, and not be included in the secondary state system. He thought the plan for opening Eye street across the tracks to the proposed route on Vallejo street, an excellent one, Kerns said. Citizens of the town seem to be agreed on the need for the connecting link.

future fires at least three minutes sooner than in the past, according to Chief Roland Bendel. The new valve allows water to be run into the hose directly from the hydrant while the engine pump is being connected.

Congregational Church News

Another Armistice Sunday is here, and the pastor has a special sermon for the celebration of this important day of memory. It is called "The Unknown Soldier Speaks" and will be an imaginative dialogue between we who are living and the spirit of the Unknown soldier, whose body lies in Arlington cemetery.

In the evening, Armistice day will be further commemorated by a union service, in which the congregations of the St. James Episcopal and the Centerville Presbyterian churches will participate. Wm. T. Attwood, James McElhinny and Wesley Gordon, the three pastors, will speak on the same text, "I came to bring peace, not a sword." There will be special singing. Services will start at 8 p. m.

Sunday school will meet at the usual time: 10 to 10:55 a. m. Christian Endeavor at 7 p. m. at the parsonage.

The Man Who Knows

Whether the Remedy You are taking for Headaches, Neuralgia or Rheumatism Pains is SAFE is Your Doctor. Ask Him

Don't Entrust Your Own or Your Family's Well-Being to Unknown Preparations

BEFORE you take any preparation you don't know all about, for the relief of headaches; or the pains of rheumatism, neuritis or neuralgia, ask your doctor what he thinks about it—in comparison with Genuine Bayer Aspirin. We say this because, before the discovery of Bayer Aspirin, most so-called "pain" remedies were advised against by physicians as being bad for the stomach; or, often, for the heart. And the discovery of Bayer Aspirin largely changed medical practice.

Countless thousands of people who have taken Bayer Aspirin year in and out without ill effect, have proved that the medical findings about its safety were correct.

Remember this: Genuine Bayer Aspirin is rated among the fastest methods yet discovered for the relief of headaches and all common pains . . . and safe for the average person to take regularly.

You can get real Bayer Aspirin at any drug store—simply by never asking for it by the name "aspirin" alone, but always saying BAYER ASPIRIN when you buy.

ALLEGED RECKLESS DRIVER TO FACE TRIAL HERE

Alvin J. Scott, of Oakland, will appear before Judge J. A. Silva here tomorrow afternoon on a charge of reckless driving, sworn to by Traffic Officer Vandrekamp, after Scott had lost control of his car and crashed into the porch of the Alvarado hotel recently.

Scott, who failed to negotiate the double turn, apparently because of too rapid driving, pleaded not guilty to the charge last Friday at the hearing here. He held the crash accidental.

Junior Patrols Will Be In Armistice Day Parade

Junior traffic patrols from Centerville and Alvarado will be among other south county units to participate in the United Veterans' Armistice day parade at Hayward Monday.

Frank Thomas, of Decoto, past commander of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, states that the U. S. S. Saratoga navy band and the marine firing squad from the same ship will participate. Speaker of the day will be Phil Solon. A baseball game in the afternoon between the American Legion post and the Veterans of Foreign Wars will be a feature of the day, with a dance to follow at the Memorial building.

actually threatening to leave his native state—glorious California—unless the state government quits "Soaking the rich."

Far and wide, William Randolph has spread the story of the robber taxes in the land of his birth. Yes, stranger, he was born right 'round here. But, "dam't" all, California couldn't help that. It was a calamity, we all agree, but there is no hard feeling against the old man on that score.
Well, anyway, Publisher Spaulding, in perusing
the daily press of his old home state of Oklahoma, learns that the people back there are taking the matter seriously. The few rich folks left in the oil belt are going to give us a wide berth from now on and go to Florida to spend their unearned increment. What is true in Oklahoma is equally true wherever men have the where-with-all to blow in on a climate and an all-fired good time.

We sympathize with the genial Spaulding, late of Shawnee; but every cloud has a silver lining.
Hearst is threatening to leave California, close up his Scottish Castle at San Simeon, and send all the kiltless girls back to Hollywood. Maybe it is not a bluff. That's where the silver lining peeps through the darkened sky. Perhaps the father of yellow journalism and the Yellow Kid will move away.

Gosh, let us hope so!

Old Man Depression Prods Us On to Speed

The depression has done one thing for the writer. It has made him a good linotype operator.
For a quarter of a century he has been toying with the celluloid keys; but while an unusually good hand compositor, and pressman, he never could quite qualify as a "speed-fiend" on the machine.

Three years ago, necessity dictated that we do most, or all, of our linotype work. Suddenly, the hang of the thing struck our fingers and nimbly they sped over the keys to "hang the elevator" hour after hour.

Are we proud of ourselves? You're asking us. Believe it, nothing we ever wrote gave us the feeling of exaltation that came with "arriving" as an operator.

Just another case of perservance overcoming all obstacles. And don't forget that stimulator, Necessity—the mother of invention. And Old Man Depression—he of sinister mean, with a club at our back to make up step lively.

Anyway, we feel pretty fine about it. We love the old linotype like we love the smell of printer's ink, and the typecases and every darn thing in the old shop.

Cumulose Soil-Building Material Parent soil materials are said to be "cumulose" when they are formed on the edges of ponds and lakes, and in swamps, by the continued addition of new vegetable matter which, by reason of its accumulation under water or where it is very wet, undergoes only partial decomposition. Such deposits of peat or muck may range from a few acres to hundreds, or even to thousands of acres in extent. Such soils in different parts of the country are used extensively for the growing of celery, onions and other truck crops, and in some of the mid-western states they are used, on a large scale, for the growing of alfalfa, potatoes, and mint, grown for its oil.

Adam and Eve Apple May Have Been Juicy Peach

There is nothing in the Bible to suggest that the "tree in the midst of the garden," which Adam and Eve were warned not to touch, was an apple tree. The traditional apple belongs to many mythologists, Greek and Scandinavian among the number. Lloyd C. Starks, an authority on the origins of fruits, says
Tit-Bits Magazine, thinks Eden's tempting fruit, which the Bible describes as "good for food," pleasant to the eyes, and a tree to be desired to make one wise, "may have been the peach, which is distinctly associated with the Chinese, Roman,
Greek and Persian civilizations.

The peach tree was "The Tree of Knowledge" to the Chinese, and it is significant that the peach was originally the Persian apple. In any case, our Authorized Version of the Scriptures is sometimes vague in its identification of birds and beasts mentioned in the original, and a like vagueness extends to fruits.

The Flash of Lightning

A flash of lightning lasts from an infinitely small part of a second for a single flash, to even a full second or more for a flash made up of several branches. The total length, too, of a streak of lightning varies greatly. When the discharge is from the cloud to the earth, the length of the path is seldom more than a mile and a half, but when the discharge is from one cloud to another, the path is more curved and bent, and the total length at times probably six, nine, or even twelve miles.

Snail, a Mollusk, Belongs to Land, Water Variety

A snail is a mollusk and properly belongs only to mollusks living on land or in fresh water, which, says a writer in the Montreal Herald, are classified as Pulmonates because they have lungs (Latin pulmo) and breathe air instead of extracting oxygen from water by means of gills as do the sea-mol-lusks. These pulmonates are of three kinds: 1, those living on land; 2, those living in fresh water; 3, slugs. Both of the first two are protected by shells to which they are permanently attached, yet may extend the body to some distance outside of them. The third kind (slugs) have no visible shell, only a small plate beneath the skin, and are wholly terrestrial. All these are virtually alike in internal structure, subsist mainly on vegetable food, are of two sexes, and reproduce by means of eggs.

As a snail carrying its shell upright on its back crawls slowly along all we see of it is the squar-ish head at the forward end of a soft but muscular, tapering body called the "foot," the undersurface of which is a tough, elastic sole by slight movement of which the animal hitches itself forward.

THE STORY

CHAPTER I.—The future of the still youthful and comely "Widder" Marcia Howe, recently released by death from her idling, selfish husband, is a conversational tit-bit among the housewives of the little hamlet of Wilton. Eligible bachelors and widowers also are interested.

CHAPTER II.—Marcia, despite her unfortunate matrimonial experience, finds pleasure in her daily life, but is lonely at times, and has invited her late husband's niece, Sylvia Hayden, whom she has never seen, to visit her. The girl arrives and Marcia takes to her at once, while Sylvia, expecting to see a somewhat elderly aunt, finds Marcia more like a sister.

CHAPTER III.—Into the uneventful, happy lives of the two women comes "Adventure." A stranger, on the verge of exhaustion, finds his way to Marcia's home. Cared for, he explains that his power-boat ran aground in the fog. His wrist is injured. Secretly, he asks Marcia to hide a package containing jewelry. She does so. The doctor comes, with Eliza Winslow, town sheriff, bringing the news of a jewel robbery on a neighboring Long Island estate. The stranger, hospitably put to bed, gives his name as Stanley Heath.

"Such as—"

"Letters, telegrams—whatever you wish. I can telephone or telegraph anywhere. Or I can write."

Surprise stole over his face, then deepened to admiration.

"You would do that for me—blindfolded?"

"Why not? I simply want to help. I always like to help when I can."

"Even when you do not understand?"

Piercing his eyes rested on her face.

"I—I do not need to understand," was her proud retort.

For the fraction of a second their glances met. When he spoke his voice was low—imperative.

"Marcia—come here!"

She went—she knew not why.

"Give me your hand."

Again, half-trembling, half reluctant, she obeyed.

He took it in his and bending, kissed it.

"I will stay and you shall telegraph," was all he said.

She sprang to fetch paper and pencil, as if welcoming this break in the tension.

"I'm afraid I cannot write plainly enough with my left hand," he said.

"Will you take down the message?"

"Certainly."

"Mrs. S. C. Heath."

Her pencil, so firm only an instant before, quivered.

"Have you that?"

"Yes."

"The Biltmore, New York City."

"Yes."

"Everything safe with me. Do not worry. Marooned on Cape Cod with cold. Nothing serious. Home soon. Love, Stanley."

"Got that?"

"Yes."

Had something gone out of her voice? The monosyllable was flat, colorless. Heath looked at her. Even her expression was different—or did he merely imagine it?

"Perhaps I would better just glance over the message before you send it—simply to make sure it's right."

"Let me copy it first," she objected.

"Copy it? Nonsense! What for? Nobody's going to see it."

He reached for the paper. Still she withheld it.

"What's the trouble?"

"It isn't written well enough. I'd rather copy it."

"Why?"

"It's wobbly. I—I—perhaps my hands were cold."

"You're not chilly?"

"No—oh, no."

"If the room is cool you mustn't stay here."

"It isn't. I'm not cold at all."

"Will you let me take the telegram?"

She placed it in his hand.

"It is shaky. However, that's of no consequence, since you are to phone Western Union. Now, if you truly are not cold, I'd like to dictate a second wire."

"All right."

"This one is for Currier," he said.

"Mr. James Currier, The Biltmore, New York City. Safe on Cape with My Lady. Shall return with her later. Motor here at once, bringing whatever I need for indefinite stay."

"Stanley C. Heath."

"Got that?"

"O. K.," nodded Marcia.

This time, without hesitation, she passed him the paper.

"This, I see, is your normal hand."

treasure, resplendent in the sunshine, a far more gorgeous spectacle than she had realized.

She clasped the diamonds about her neck; fastened the emerald brooch in place; put on the sapphire pendant; then added the rings and looked at herself in the gold-framed mirror.

What she saw reflected dazzled her. Who would have believed jewels would make such a difference in one's appearance? They set off her blond beauty so that she was suddenly transformed into a princess.

She really ought to have jewels. She was born to them and could carry them off. There were myriad women in the world on whom such adornment would be wasted—good and worthy women, too.

Then a voice interrupted her reverie.

It was Stanley Heath calling.

She heard Marcia reply and come hurrying upstairs.

Guiltily Sylvia took off her sparkling regalia; tumbled it unceremoniously into its case; and slipped it into the drawer underneath a pile of night-dresses. Then she softly unlocked the door and sauntered out.

It was none too soon, for Marcia was speaking to her.

"Sylvia?"

"Yes."

"How would you feel about going out to the village for the mail and to do some errands? The tide is out and you could walk. Prince needs a run."

"I'd love to."

"That's fine. Here's a list of things that we need at the store. You're sure you don't mind going?"

"No, indeed. I shall enjoy being out."

Then suddenly Sylvia had an inspiration which she instantly acted upon.

"Why don't you go?" she inquired. "You didn't sleep much last night, and a walk might do you good."

"Oh, I couldn't," objected Marcia with haste. "I've a hundred and one things to do. Thanks, just the same."

"Well, you know your own business best. Is this the list?"

"Yes. There are quite a few items, but they won't be heavy. Here is the basket. Prince will carry it. That is his job and very proud he is of doing it. Good-by, dear."

"She's dreadfully anxious to get us out of the way, isn't she, Prince?" commented young Sylvia as she and the setter started out over the sand. "Now what do you suppose she has on her mind? She's up to something. Marcia isn't a bit of an actress. She's too genuine."

Marcia, standing at the window watching the girl, would have been astonished enough had she heard this astute observation.

She did want Sylvia out of the way. The girl had read her correctly.

She must telephone the messages to the stationmaster at Sawyer Falls, the adjoining town where the railroad ended and the nearest telegraph station was.

She got the line and had no sooner dictated the telegrams than she heard Heath's voice.

During the interval that had elapsed since she had left him, both of them had experienced a reaction and each was eager to make amends.

Marcia regretted her flippancy. It had been childish of her to give way to pique and punish Heath simply because it was proved he had a wife. Why should he not be married?

Heath had been quite frank about the message and its destination. On thinking matters over, it occurred to Marcia he might have considered this the easiest way to inform her of things he found it embarrassing to put into words.

And she?

Instead of appreciating his honesty, chivalry, gentlemanly conduct as she should have done, and receiving it graciously, surprise had betrayed her into displaying resentment.

She was heartily ashamed of herself. No matter how much it humbled her pride, she must put things right. Fortunately it was not too late to do so.

Therefore, a very different Marcia Howe responded to Stanley Heath's summons.

She was now all gentleness, friendliness, and shyly penitent.

Stanley, again master of himself, welcomed her with amazement. Could man ever fathom a woman's moods, he asked himself? Why this chastened and distractingly adorable Marcia?

Well, if he could not fathom her, he at least was grateful for her understanding.

"Here I am, Mr. Heath. What can I do for you?" was her greeting.

This time she did not hesitate, but went directly to the chair beside his bed and sat down. He smiled and, meeting his eyes, she smiled back. This was better. Heath sighed a sigh of relief.

"I've been thinking, since you went down stairs, about Currier. He ought to arrive late tonight or early tomorrow morning. Although he will not know in which house I am quartered, he will have the wit to inquire, for he has more than the ordinary quota of brains. I don't know what I should do without him. I shall have him leave the car in the village and after he has delivered over the clothing he is to bring, he can take the noon train back to New York, carrying the jewels with him."

"I see," nodded Marcia.

She did not see. Nevertheless she heartily welcomed the intelligence that the jewels with their damning evidence, if evidence it was, were to be removed from the house. The sooner they were out of the way the better. If they were not damning evidence they at least were a great responsibility.

Suppose something were to happen to them? Suppose somebody suspected they were in the house?

"So," continued Stanley Heath, "I think sometime today when you have a good opportunity you'd better get the case and bring it up here. I shall then have it here in my room and I can hand it over to Currier without any trouble."

"I'll go fetch it now. Sylvia has gone to the village and this is a splendid chance," cried Marcia.

"Fine!"

"I'll be right back."

He heard her speed down the stairs and listened to her step in the room below.

Then there was silence.

A few moments later she came racing back, white and breathless.

"They're gone!" she cried. "The place is empty! The jewels are not there!"

Her terror and the fear lest her pallor foreshadowed collapse produced in Heath that artificial calm one sometimes sees when a strong nature reins itself in and calls upon its reserve control.

The man thought only of how to quiet her. Reaching out, he touched her hair.

"Hush, Marcia. The jewels will be found. Don't give way like this. I cannot bear to see you. The whole lot of them are not worth your tears."

"But you left them in my care. It was I who suggested where to hide them," she moaned.

"I know. And it was a splendid idea, too. I could not let that sheriff of yours peel off my clothes and find the diamonds on me. He isn't a man of sufficient imagination—or perhaps he is one of far too much. I am not blaming you—not in the least. We did the best we could in the emergency. If things have gone wrong, it is no fault of yours."

"But you trusted me. I ought to have watched. I should not have left the kitchen day or night," declared Marcia, lifting her tear-stained face to his.

"You have been there most of the time, haven't you?"

"I went to see them get the boat off yesterday."

"Still some one was here. Sylvia was in the house."

"Yes, but she knew nothing about the jewels and therefore may not have realized the importance of staying on deck. All I asked her to do was to remain within call. She may have gone upstairs, or into another room."

"When she comes back, you can ask her. Now we must pull ourselves together, dear," went on Stanley gently. "It is important that we do not give ourselves away. Sylvia may know nothing and if she does not, we must not let her suspect."

She rose, but he still held her hand, a common misery routing every thought of conventionality.

The firmness and magnetism of his touch brought strength. It was a new experience, for during her life with Jason, Marcia had been the oak—the one who consoled, sustained. For a few delicious moments, she let herself rest, weary and unresisting, within the shelter of Stanley Heath's grasp. Then she drew away and, passing her hand across her forehead as if awaking from a dream, murmured:

"I'd better go down. Sylvia will be coming."

"Very well. Now keep a stiff upper lip."

"I will—I'll do my best."

Even as she spoke the outer door opened, then closed with a bang.

"There's Sylvia now. I must go."

The girl came in, aglow from her walk.

"I'm awfully sorry I banged the door," she apologized. "A gust of wind took it. I do hope I didn't wake up Mr. Heath. Here's the marketing. And Marcia, what do you suppose? I had a letter from Hortie Fuller—that fellow back home that I've told you about. He's send me a five-pound box of candy and he wants to come to Wilton and spend his summer vacation."

The girl's eyes were shining and she breathed quickly.

"Of course I don't care a button for Hortie. Still, it would be rather good fun to see him. After all, Hortie isn't so bad. Thinking him over from a distance, he really is rather nice. Come and sample the candy. It's wonderful. He must have blown himself, and sent to Chicago for it, poor dear! I'll let you see the letter, all except the part which is too frightfully silly. You wouldn't care about that. I don't myself."

Sylvia shrugged her shoulders. Alas, this was no moment to talk with her, and artfully draw from her the happenings of the previous day.

Inwardly distraught but outwardly calm, Marcia took the letter and tried valiantly to focus her attention upon it.

To her surprise, it was a manly, intelligent letter, filled with town gossip, to be sure, yet written in delightfully interesting fashion.

"Your Mr. Fuller sounds charming," she said as she gave it back.

"Oh, Hortie is all right—in some ways." Patronizingly slipping the letter into her pocket, Sylvia shifted the subject. Nevertheless, a betraying flush colored her cheeks.

"Now, we must start dinner, mustn't we? Don't you want to ask Mr. Heath which way he prefers his eggs—poached or boiled? And Marcia, while you're there, do put on a pair of fresh pillow-slips on his pillows. The ones he has are frightfully tumbled. I meant to do it this morning."

As the door closed behind the elder woman, artful young Sylvia smiled.

"There! That will keep her busy for a few moments at least. I know those pillow-cases. They fit like a snake's skin and are terribly hard to get off and on."

She crept into the hall and listened.

Yes, Marcia and Stanley Heath were talking. She could hear her aunt's gentle insistence and the man's protests. That was all she wished to know. The pillow-cases were in process of being taken off.

Up the stairs flew Sylvia, to return a second later, the jewel case swathed in its loose wrappings.

An anxious interval elapsed before the brick was pried out and the case slipped beneath it. Nevertheless the feat was accomplished, and triumphant, relieved, happy Sylvia set about preparing dinner.

What a long while Marcia was staying upstairs! Why, one could change a dozen pillow-cases in this time.

"I guess they are tighter than I remembered them. I needn't have rushed as I did," pouted Sylvia.

"What can she be doing?"

When at last Marcia returned something evidently was wrong.

"What's the matter?" demanded Sylvia. "Is Mr. Heath worse?"

"Worse? No indeed. What made you think so?"

"You look fussed."

"Do I? You'd be fussed had you wrestled with those pillow-slips as I have," was the reply. "Either the pillows have swelled or the cases have shrunk frightfully. Well, they are on now, anyway."

"Come and get dinner then. I'm starved. My walk has made me hungry as a bear. You must go out this afternoon, Marcia. It is a glorious day and you need to be pepped up."

To her surprise, Marcia demurred.

"Thank you, dear, but I think I won't go out today. I'd rather sit here and read. I'm too tired to go."

"The air would rest you."

"Not today, dear," Marcia said with finality. "I have some mending to do and lots of other little things that I have been saving up for a long time. Since I prefer to stay, why don't you tramp up the shore and see 'My Unknown Lady'? She is beautiful and you haven't seen her yet."

"Well, if your mind is made up, I suppose there is no use in my trying to change it. I would like to see the boat."

"I'm sure you would. Stay as long as you like. There will be nothing to do here. Mr. Heath will probably sleep and in the meantime I shall get my sewing done."

As Marcia spoke the words, her mind was busy.

So Sylvia had not stirred from the kitchen on the previous afternoon! The theft of the jewels must, then, have taken place during the night.

Nevertheless, she was puzzled, for she had no memory of finding anything awry when she came down at sunrise to lay the fire.

When had the gems been taken, and who had taken them? No wonder she craved solitude to ponder the conundrum! This, however, was not the paramount reason she desired to be alone.

Despite the enigma of the jewels; despite the mystery surrounding Stanley Heath, deep in her heart something that would not be stilled was singing—singing!

CHAPTER VI

IN THE meantime, the throng of neighbors Sylvia had precipitately left in the village post office had received their mail and reached that anticipated interval for gossip which never failed to be stimulating.

Zenas Henry was speaking:

"A mighty fine little girl—that Sylvia," commented he. "A high stepper! We'd oughter tie her down to Wilton so'st she won't go back west. She's too pretty to be spared from the Cape."

"I figger you'd have keepin' her here," rejoined Nickerson, the postmaster.

got a beau in her home town. Had a letter an' a box of candy from him today. Same writin' an' same postmark on both of 'em, I noticed."

"Didn't by any chance see the name, did you, Silas?" Eleazer Crocker inquired.

"Wal, come to think of it, it did catch my eye. You know how such things will. Fuller, he's called, Horatio Fuller."

"Horatio Fuller, eh?" Eleazer repeated. "Kinder high soundin'. Wonder who he is? From Alton City, you say?"

Silas nodded.

"That was the address."

"Never heard of the place," Capt. Benjamin Todd put in.

Thoughtfully Zenas Henry stroked his chin. "If everybody knew where all the blasted places in the country were, what use would they have for maps? 'Twould put the map-makin' folks clean out of business. Say, Ephraim," inspired by a bright idea, "you're the mail carrier. You'd oughter be primed on the location of places. Where's Alton City?"

"Alton City? Hanged if I know. To hear you talk, anybody'd think 'twas my job to tote round the country deliverin' letters in person at the doors of every house in the United States."

"But you must have some notion 'bout geography. Ain't you got no pocket atlas nor nothin'?"

"I may have a small map somewhere; I carry most everything," Ephraim grinned. With deliberation, he began to disgorge, upon the counter the contents of his many pockets.

"Ought to be in my breast pocket," thrusting his hand inside his pea-coat. "My eye! If I ain't forgot that telegram!" he abruptly exclaimed. "The station-master at Sawyer Falls gave it to me when he handed out the mail. It clean went out of my mind. It's for that chap Heath who's stayin' over at 'The Widder's.'"

"Hadin' you been 'wool-gatherin' you might 'a' given it to Sylvia to take back with her. She was here only a little while ago," Silas Nickerson said.

"I know it."

"S'pose I was to take it over," Eliza Winslow suggested eagerly. "I'm willin' to."

"Fur's that goes, I can carry it," Capt. Phineas Taylor piped.

"Now, there's no use in all you fellers volunteerin'," Eleazer Crocker asserted. "I'm goin' straight over to Marcia's, as it happens, son's I've at my dinner, an' I'll take the telegram."

With an air of authority, he held out his hand.

The crowd fell back.

Early afternoon found Marcia alone in the Homestead sitting room. Sylvia had gone up to the beach. Stanley Heath was asleep; and at last the delicious interval of solitude which the woman coveted was here.

She could not work. Try as she would, her mind wandered off into byways too fascinating to be resisted—byways which no matter how remote their windings, invariably led her back to Stanley Heath.

In retrospect she lived over again every incident, every word, every look that had passed between them, until she came to the barrier of the unknown which her fancy bridged with intricate rainbow-hued imaginings. She twisted possible explanations this way and that and would contentedly have continued the pastime had not Eleazer Crocker knocked at the door.

Eleazer could not have chosen a more inopportune moment to drag her back to earth.

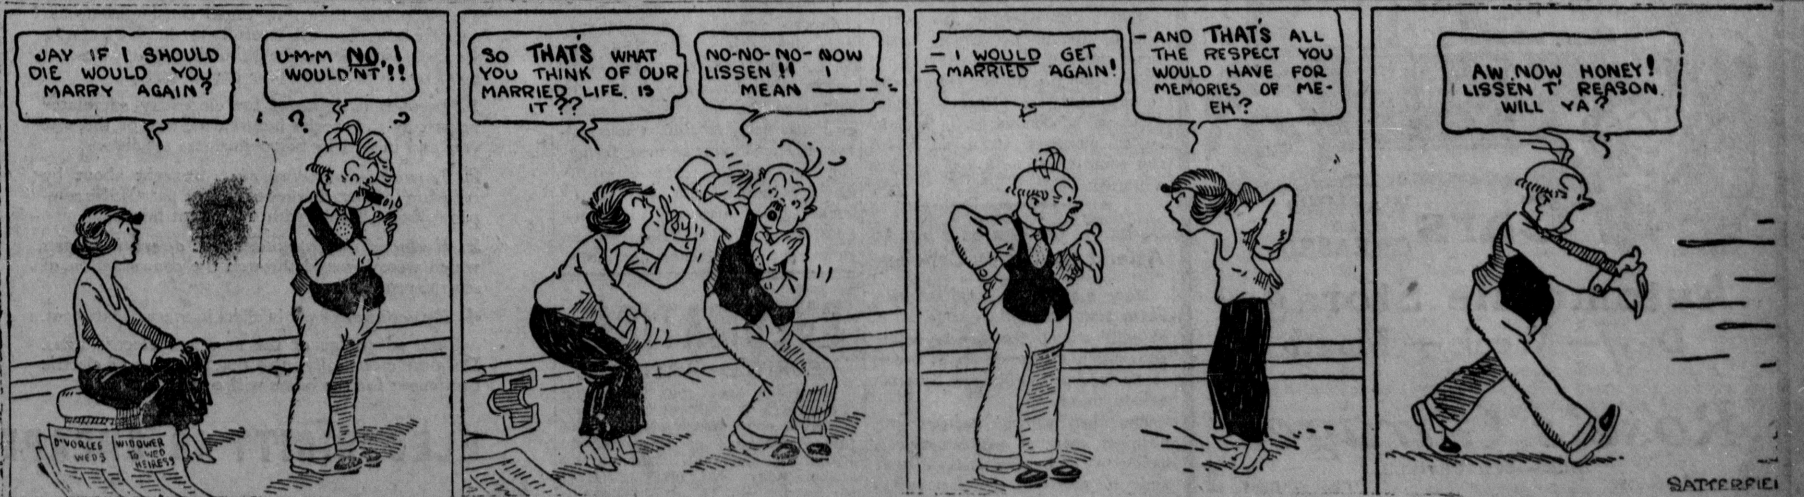

With a frown and a deep sigh, Marcia went reluctantly to let him in.

"Wal, now ain't it nice to find you by yourself?" was his greeting. "The kitchen looks cozy as can be. Where was you settin'?"

"I was in the front room, but perhaps we better drop down here so I can listen in case Mr. Heath should call."

"Anywhere you say. Wherever you are suits me."

OPINION ON PHONE CHANGE SOUGHT AT DECOTO

Telephone subscribers in the Decoto district are being contacted in a telephone company canvass this week, and their sentiments on a proposed change to a dial system recorded.

Frank Thomas, president of the Decoto Junior Chamber of Commerce, states that a similar canvass, conducted by the juniors, showed favorable opinion uppermost. Following the company's survey, the matter will be presented to the Railroad Commission, and a hearing held, probably at Decoto. Farmers on the Alvarado creek road are solidly in favor of the change.

Thomas stated that the present phone service, from 7 a. m. to 10 p. m., is inadequate, and although the dial system will cost subscribers twenty-five cents additional per month, the change seems to have gained public support.

Developments in the phone question were discussed by the Decoto juniors Monday night, as were plans for their forthcoming benefit dance, to be held at the Garden of Allah Saturday night. Funds derived from this source will be divided between a library fund and the Catholic church.

Plans for the library were drawn recently by the Decoto Senior Chamber of Commerce. It is planned to purchase a lot on which the county will be asked to place a library.

S. E. S. Delegates Plan to Attend the Gilroy Conclave

Many members, as well as delegates from the Niles lodge S. E. S., will attend the five-day state convention of the S. E. S. order, to be held at Gilroy from November 10 to 14.

The meet will be replete with business sessions, parades, dances, banquets, barbecues and all that goes to make up an interesting and entertaining convention.

H. F. HARROLD NEW PRESIDENT OF MEN'S CLUB

Fears of Past President E. Dixon Bristow that the Men's Club was not arousing quite the interest it had in the past were definitely dispelled last Wednesday night, when eighty-six enthusiastic members gathered at the Congregational church, Niles, for the regular fall meeting and the annual election of officers. Bristow stated that the gathering was one of the most successful in the history of the organization, and certainly during his administration.

When the election ballots were counted, H. F. Harrold, of Decoto, former vice president, was hailed as new leader of the club. George Hellwig, of Alvarado, was named vice president to succeed Harrold, while A. J. Petsche, of Niles, was voted to take Barton Webb's place as secretary. John E. Dutra, of Newark, able treasurer, was returned to office for another term.

Following the excellent dinner, prepared and served by the ladies of the Congregational Guild, under the supervision of Mrs. E. A. Ellsworth, president, the assembly heard a vivid address by Dr. William Paden, superintendent of city school, of Alameda. Paden, an authority on California trails and lore, presented new data of importance in the history of the state.

The musical program, arranged in part by Miss Margaret Breier, Niles Grammar school teacher, consisted of violin solos by her; vocal selections by Charles Breier and the Rev. Emmet O'Conner, the latter accompanied by Henri Salz, and accordion selections by little Albert Silva.

U. S. Marines Will Have Anniversary Celebration

Postmaster H. V. Fournier has been advised by Major T. Talmage Taylor, of the United States Marine corps, at San Francisco, California, that on November 10, the 160th anniversary of the formation of the marine corps will be celebrated.

The major told of the origin of the corps, which took place on November 10, 1775, in Tun Tavern, Philadelphia, where 300 men and officers were recruited to man the fighting tops of men of war to snipe the enemy gunners.

MORE ON Drunken Driver

fine, general surprise—not to say disgust and anger—has been registered here that the charge was reduced, particularly on motion of the prosecuting attorney. This is but one of many similar shocking instances when intoxicated motorists have been coddled by the district attorney's office.

Another case to come before the local judge tomorrow will be that of Catalino Soupan, of Lathrop, charged with reckless driving, although it was originally reported that he was intoxicated when his car crashed into that of Mrs. Ernestine V. Genesey and Pauline Genesey, of Oakland, near Warm Springs early last week.

Soupan, haled before Judge J. A. Silva last Friday pleaded not guilty to the reckless driving charge and trial date was set for November 8.

Members of the Genesey party were injured in the crash, which followed Soupan's sideswiping of cars driven by G. M. Tully and E. C. Rucker, both of Oakland.

The second reckless driver who will face the local court tomorrow afternoon is John Canha, arrested last Thursday near Irvington by Traffic Officer Duffy Lewis. Canha, who had no license when arrested, appeared before Judge Silva Friday for arraignment. He pleaded not guilty.

A. J. RATHBONE HOST AT PRINCIPALS' GATHERING

With A. J. Rathbone as host for the evening, the Alameda County Principals' Association met Monday night at the El Lido cafe, Centerville. Guy E. Brown, of Livermore, presided.

Following the business session, Miss Grace Knoles, of the Centerville high school faculty, gave a report on the National Education Association convention, held at Denver, Colo., several months ago, and which she attended. David E. Martin, county superintendent, told the gathered school heads of the new retirement law, to affect teachers throughout the state.

In addition to a dramatic reading by Miss Margaret Fisher, of the Washington Union High school faculty, musical numbers were played by Miss Margaret Breier, Niles Grammar school teacher. Miss Sybil Botelho, high school art teacher, directed art classes in the design of the place cards and decorations.

Fellowship Supper At Irvington Tomorrow

Following the fellowship supper, to be held at the Irvington Community church tomorrow night at 6:45 o'clock, there will be a program consisting of musical numbers, and an address by Dr. Carrick, of St. John's church, San Francisco.

Important on the program will be violin solos by Donald Blackmer, songs by Mrs. R. L. Hansen, soprano, and popular numbers by Miss Moore.

There will also be a display of pastel sketches, done by the Rev. E. E. Moore in the Lake Tahoe region this summer, showing views of the mountain district. Mr. Moore will also exhibit a number of sketches done of interesting places in the bay district.

Mrs. H. R. Hunt and Mrs. Besie Nelson are making their home at the Hotel Belvoir. Following the destruction of Mrs. Hunt's home by fire late last year, she took up residence in the Pickering house, moving from there to the hotel.

P. G. and E. REDUCES ELECTRIC RATES

New low rates will apply on electricity used in the home and for commercial lighting throughout P. G. & E. system. Over 690,000 customers will benefit by this saving of nearly $4,000,000 a year, beginning with January bills.

CHEAPER ELECTRICITY

Reduced electric rates mean just one thing—cheaper electricity. To each individual home in the P. G. and E. system and to all commercial lighting customers that means more comforts and conveniences from electricity at no additional cost.

APPLIES TO JANUARY BILLS

The reduced electric rates take effect automatically and apply on January bills to all domestic users and to all commercial lighting customers.

WHY this reduced electric rate?

This substantial saving to our customers of nearly $4,000,000 has been long under consideration and we have been planning carefully for it. We feel now we can justify it on the following four points of good business. These four points are:

1. Increased demand for electricity stimulated in part by the special inducement rate of the past year and in part by better business conditions.
2. Lowered financing costs brought about by reducing interest charges of a large part of the company's bonded debt with 4 per cent bonds.
3. Reduced management and operating costs which were lowered through the consolidation of several properties.
4. By economies put in effect in every department.

Take advantage of the new low electric rates. Do more electrically, now that all types of electric equipment for the home will cost less to use.

Electric Rates Cut again and again

Electric rates have dropped steadily and consistently in the P. G. and E. system.

In 1928 . . . rates were reduced by $2,418,900 yearly.

Again in 1930 . . . rates dropped by $3,020,000 yearly.

Again in 1935 . . . an inducement rate is saving customers $1,600,000 in one year.

NOW AGAIN in 1935-36 reduced rates save $3,924,000 yearly. In only eight years accumulated rate reductions have amounted to $54,621,000.

Electricity is cheaper in California, with P. G. & E. electric rates among the lowest in the country.
